

The Economy Through the Eyes of Forbes' Top Performing Bank

Al Landon

With the State's economy in question due to a national subprime recklessness of practices, one bank was noted for its "boring" practices. Bank of Hawaii, Hawaii's second largest bank, is listed as the top performer on Forbes top 100 banks & thrifts in the nations due to its financial success. Bank of Hawaii Chairman and CEO, Al Landon, will give an update on the industry and Bank of Hawaii. He will also discuss Hawaii's current economic situation and how it relates to West Oahu.

Prior to Mr. Landon's speech, we will have a brief presentation by Gregory Barbour, Administrator, Hawaii Foreign-Trade Zone.

Foreign-trade zones are specially designated areas outside the US Customs territory and there are 14 sites in Hawaii including all of James Campbell Industrial Park. Mr. Barbour will discuss how this allows unique cost savings for companies that use foreign made components in their manufacturing and/or looking to store their foreign goods. For companies involved in international commerce: FTZs are flexible, operationally feasible and can be implemented with little or no operational changes.
